

Jeff Raley IT Manager

In his role as IT Manager for Western Resource Advocates (WRA), Jeff Raley performs all information technology functions for the organization, including managing infrastructure, vendor relationships, user support and more. He also creates and updates WRA's policies and training related to information technology.

As part of his role, he ensures the entire team has the tools and technology they need to succeed. He has unified technology resource access for ease of use and makes himself readily available when issues arise, in order to make the technology as easy and accessible as possible for everyone.

Raley joined WRA in 2020, after nearly two decades in the field. He began his IT career in education, and most recently served as systems administrator for Jagged Peak Energy, where he excelled at everything from systems migration to infrastructure maintenance. He also collaborated with internal auditors, to confirm adherence to IT controls related to Sarbanes-Oxley Act.

Being from Hawaii, Raley is especially passionate about doing what he can to sustain the West's lands and resources. He is grateful to be a part of the team working to reverse detrimental policies and replace them with more sustainable practices, so that his children's generation inherits as healthy an ecosystem as possible.

He now resides in Colorado with his wife and two sons. When he's not working, Raley enjoys camping, rafting, and other outdoor pursuits. He can also often be found at his kids' sporting events.
